Local Artists Gather at Bistro for Open-Microphone Performances

By Monica Hoang

ayward may not be known as a cultural Mecca, but a local venue called the Bistro fills part of the artistic void, showcasing a variety of local artists.

Situated at the corner of B and Main streets in downtown Hayward, the Bistro offers everything from gospel to alternative music to love poems.

Jan. 26, over the course of up as they aree hours, a multitude of walked in, three hours, a multitude of artists performed a variety of acts. Each performer was allowed 10 minutes of stage show ended,

The event was presented stepped up by The Book Shop, next door to to the stage. the Bistro. Church Jenn acted as the evening's host.

The small café exudes a their own inwelcoming warmth and coziness. Part of the Bistro's charm equipment, violins adorn the walls, along-tables, then the stools running box and sang, "Our God is an the length of the wooden bar. Awesome God." Her facial The audience was a mixed bag of backgrounds and Local artists who wanted to perand as each 10-minute a new artist Some musicians brought struments and is the décor: Saxophones and while some just brought their smiles.

side historical photographs.

As the event started, people filled the seats at the people filled the people f expressions and projected emotions enthralled the audience.

Musician Sherry Barret show-cased her guitar talents with three songs, one of which was Celine Dion's "I'm Your Lady." "I moved to Hayward from Fre

essio